After several weeks of planning, event organisers across the country are ready to give thousands of Australians the opportunity to discover and explore a wide variety of adult learning activities during Adult Learners' Week, 1 – 8 September.

Community members from hundreds of metropolitan and regional centres across Australia are invited to celebrate the joy of learning and get involved in a range of activities including beginners' computer classes, adult learning displays, workshops, learning conversations and journeys, community centre open days, financial planning courses, public speaking forums and more.

There is also a free official online calendar available on the Adult Learners' Week national website and it's easy to find out what is happening in your local community during the week.

“This is an important calendar event for our adult learning communities and we invite all Australians to share their knowledge and skills with each other during this week of celebration; and enjoy the benefits of adult learning throughout life”, said Peter Murphy, Adult Learners' Week National Coordinator.

Adult Learners' Week is coordinated nationally and managed by Adult Learning Australia; and supported by funding from the Department of Education, Science and Training
